Bayley Wins Third In Cross-Country Run
Francis C. Bayley, coach of the Mount Hermon Cross-Country team won third place in a ten-mile cross-country run held in Greenfield, Mass., on Columbus Day. The race was sponsored by the Knights of Columbus. Mr. Bayley's time was 57 minutes and 36 seconds. This time was less than a minute over the time of the first two men.

Mountain Day Held at Hermon
Last Thursday the Seniors had Mountain Day at Mount Hermon. At 9:15 they left the campus in cars furnished by the members of the faculty with great ambitions to scale the lofty peaks of Mount Hermon. After a pleasant ride to the half-way house, all jumped out to breathe the delightful mountain air. Football was played by all the score being 243-248. Volley ball was played midst the football game and the rain. The chefs Watson, Forslund, Jackson, Morrow, Carman, White, Seaman, Johnson and others did a fine job in feeding the hungry mouths of the Seniors and Prof. Smith kept the group in good humor by reciting, "Two truths are told, 'et cetera, just to remind us of dear old Macbeth. After a rousing cheer for the chefs, the ascension of the mountain had begun. The climb was made successfully with no serious catastrophes except that the husky members of the football team were extremely exhausted. After being thoroughly chilled by the cold mountain air and the rain, the tired but happy members of the Senior Class started the cross country dash for the foot of the mountain. Then the homeward journey began which ended a very eventful day.

Picnic For New Students
Wednesday evening Oct. 17, a picnic for the new students of Mount Hermon school was held from 4-6. The purpose of the picnic was to get the students acquainted with each other and with the advisors. The met at Camp Hall with their advisors and started their walk for Bear Den. The students ate their dinner around separate group campfires, the student council taking care of the food question. There were about two hundred and fifty students present.

Alumni Banquet
On the evening of Oct. 11, the father and son banquet was given in West Hall for the sons of Hermon alumni, and for the Hermon men here on the Hill. There were approximately 35 sons present, and about 80 others made up the rest. Mr. Porter was the principal speaker, followed by Dean Elder and Mr. Watson.

Junior and Senior Privilege
Last Saturday, October 13 the Junior and Senior girls of the Seminary were the guests of the corresponding classes at Mount Hermon for the afternoon. They were interested spectators at the football games, and then went to the social hall, where tea was served.

The Senior and Junior football teams met last Saturday for their first inter-class clash. In the first three minutes the Juniors scored a touchdown. The remainder of the game was bitterly fought. The final score was 12-0 in favor of the Juniors. The second game was between the Sophomores and the Freshmen. The Freshman team managed to hold the Sophs. to a scoreless tie. This makes the third time the Fresh have played to this score.

Mount Hermon, Mass.
Mr. and Mrs. William H. Morrow last Sunday evening began their entertainments for the students of Overton Hall. These informal social gatherings proved to be successful last year that they are being continued this year. Twelve students are entertained at a time, and refreshments are served. The Hermonites have announced a new date of issue. From now on the school paper will be issued

Garden Club

Have you ever thought how dull and uninteresting the landscape would be, if suddenly all of our trees swept away. Trees are the grandest things of the plant world, and here in New England, we are rich in trees. I was asked to name the tree that is most typically New England, I don't know whether I should decide on the elm or the sugar maple. The graceful elm that our forefathers planted so generously, shades our streets and stands an aged sentinel by many a time-worn house. It seems to belong to our villages. It is a part of the atmosphere that still lingers around New England highways. It is stately, beautiful and impersonal. But the sugar maple, from the time when its leaves unfold in the spring, wrinkled and velvety like babies hands, until it bursts into flaming beauty in the fall, lies close to our hearts. It is so homey, so like "one of the family." It belongs to the cottage as well as the mansion. It is at home on the distant hillside, or by the doorstep. The birds love its thick branches and the children room in its shade. It shares its bounty with us while snow still covers the fields, and all the years around it shares our lives. There have always been wonderfully alive to me. I love to lean against their rough bark, to revel in the thousand fascinations that they offer. It hurts me to see an axe laid on their rugged trunks and here in America we are so careless with the axe. It is so easy to destroy like thoughtless children, what we cannot create like gods. We are so absorbed in the petty details of life, that we cannot bear to be hindered. If a giant stand in our way, how it down. If we meet a mountain, plow through it. The road for human progress must be straight, easy and glaring. There must be no pleasant by-ways to lure our eyes from our goal, no gentle secluded vales to rest our weary souls. Our everlasting efficiency reaches out over all the land, destroying the simple loveliness that was meant to keep us sane and wholesome. The farther that man gets from nature, the farther he gets from God. Sometimes I think that only children and animals really understand God. It takes a great simplicity, to delve down into the deeps, as well as over head. To realize that God is underfoot and on all sides of us, as well as in the sky. The trees unite the earth and the sky, they point the way to heaven the same time that they are drawing us close to the soil. They speak if we would but listen and the messages that the wordless whispers of the "Most-high." But we go our hurried way unheeding, we slash down whole forests without a thought, we kill that which years cannot replace and look at the ruin and call it good. We treat the beauty spots of our land with scant respect and disregard, the sacrilege. A towering grove, more beautiful by far than any cathedral, is but a place for picnickers or to set on fire with a carelessly tossed stick with rubbing with rubbish thrown match or cigarette. Only a few hours time, and something living and glorious is gone from the world forever.

Look out over our hills and fields today. Are they not worth saving, these friends of ours? Is all the waste going on around us necessary? Must we always demolish one thing in order to build something else? The tree may grow on land that you call yours, but it belongs to the world. You cannot needlessly destroy any creation of God, without improving your neighbors' lives as well as your own. Be a friend to your trees.

The Garden Club met last Monday night with the president, Mr. I. J. Lawrence. The original plan had been to have supper and the meeting on the shore of the pond, trusting to fires for comfort and warmth; but because of a heavy mist close to the ground, it was not thought wise. The fireplace inside was more than a mere substitute however, and the kitchen stove was pressed into service to cook the frankfurts. Afterwards, marshmallows were toasted in the fireplace. Only a few were present but the good cheer and warmth, made up for the lack of numbers.

The meetings from now on will be held inside and our program committee are going to do their best to give us interesting times. Blanche I. Corser.

TOWN HALL COMMITTEE HAS FOUND SOLUTION

The committee appointed by the Moderator at the last town meeting have held several sessions to look over the stage at the Town Hall. The plans as they stand now and which will be presented to the Special Town meeting are very comprehensive. It was found that it was not necessary to remodel the outside of the hall except to relocate the two fire escapes. The dressing rooms would be located overhead in two sections now unoccupied one on either side of the stage and would contain 100 square feet of space each. The Stage would be widened in the rear and have added, 125 square feet to it.

The Fire Escape would be moved and in the space now occupied by the one on the East Side a covered stairway leading to the kitchen would be built.

The plans as outlined have the tentative sanction of the State Building Inspector and are the result of much words on the part of the committee.

Henry Johnson submitted the idea upon which these plans are built.

Everyone who has been "back stage" in the Hall will appreciate these changes and should be prepared to vote for them when they come at special Town meeting, probably Nov. 6.

Chaplain Conducts Saturday Service

Rev. Harold B. Ingalls, Chaplain of Northfield Seminary, was the speaker at Saturday morning chapel. He was assisted by Muriel Parker of the student body, who gave the scripture and the prayer preceding his talk. Mr. Ingalls described the Jordan River of Palestine which empties into two bodies of water; one the Red Sea which is a curse because of its saltiness, the other the Sea of Galilee a blessing for it is fed by streams of sulphur with no outlet whatsoever. The Sea of Galilee is fed by pure water with an outlet. People must have the characteristics of the Sea of Galilee in their support of the church, which is the essential element of life, and the medium for redeeming water. The church would be weak without the support of every member. Mr. Ingalls urged students to take a more active interest in the Seminary Church activities; as it is a fruitful undertaking to those who make it their interest.

Emerson's "Manners," Miss Wilson's Topic

Miss Mira B. Wilson was most interesting in her chapel talk on Emerson's essay "Manners," in Tuesday chapel service. Emerson gave as his definition of manners "the happy way of doing things, each one a stroke of genius or of love—now hardened into usage." The author believed that having good manners required time, that nothing is more vulgar than haste. Manners are basic to our civilization and make man what he is or can be. Some of Emerson's illustrations of bad manners are contradictions at the table, over boldness, self pity, self invitation to a home for a meal etc. The author would have a man repulsive, shy, humble and lost but not less manly; and woman to be not beautiful but to have an air and impression that would make her wanted. Emerson believed in coming to the breakfast table with pleasant thoughts, rather than brooding about that terrible night-mare I had or that terrible Smith dog who kept me awake and gave me such a headache. The author's motto was evidently to scatter joy and not pain.

Chaplain Ingalls Ordained
By Emily Amidon

A service of ordination for Harold Brown Ingalls, Chaplain of Northfield Seminary since 1933, was held Tuesday evening October 16 at the North Church on the Green, New Haven, Connecticut. The examining council had earlier in the afternoon voted to accept the candidate and to administer the service of ordination.

An organ prelude—prayer by Ropartz preceded the service as did the congregational singing of "O God Our Help In Ages Past." The statement by the Moderator was then given by the Reverend Lewis E. Purdue followed by the call to worship and Invocation by the Reverend Henry H. Tweedy. The scripture lesson given by the Reverend George Stewart was from Corinthians I Chapter 13, based on love. An anthem—Reveries by Woodman was rendered by the choir after which the Reverend Thomas W. Graham preached the ordination sermon taking as his topic "Make Love Your Quest."

Immediately preceding the sermon the hymn "Make Me a Captive Lord," was sung. The charge to the candidate was then given by the Reverend Henry P. Van Dusen who emphasized the necessity to the candidate of "Speak the Truth With Love." The ordination prayer by the Reverend E. Fay Campbell and Choir Response followed the charge after which the Right Hand of Fellowship was extended by the Reverend Richard H. Clapp. Another hymn—"Rise Up O Men of God" was then sung and in conclusion the Rev. Harold B. Ingalls pronounced the benediction. The organ postlude Risorito by Parker concluded the service.

Harold Brown Ingalls, son of George Everett Ingalls and the late Laura Brown Ingalls, was born in Kansas City, Kansas, August 31, 1902. Most of his life, until college days, was spent in Cleveland, Ohio, where he attended the public schools. In 1921 he entered Oberlin College, from which he received the degree of Bachelor of Arts in 1926. During the next two years he taught at the Oberlin Academy, Memorial School in Taihu, Shansi, China as a representative of Oberlin College. In September 1928 he became a secretary of the National Council of the Y.M.C.A. for work in Colleges and preparatory schools, which position he occupied for five years, with some time allotted to graduate work at Union Theological Seminary. In 1933 he received the degree of Master of Arts from Columbia University. In the same year he was called to become Chaplain of Northfield Seminary in connection with which position he completed his Middle year at Yale Divinity School and was licensed to preach by the New Haven West Association of Congregational Churches and Ministers in the spring of 1934.

The entire family of Mr. Ingalls from Ohio attended his ordination service as did Miss Mira B. Wilson and Miss Victoria Freeman of East Northfield, Mass., who acted as delegates from the Northfield Seminary Church.

Georg School-Master Speaks At Sunday Chapel

By Ethel Sigel

The speaker on Sunday at both services of the Northfield Seminary Church was Mr. Richmond P. Miller, of the Georg School in Pennsylvania. His sermon was based on the words, "Let Your Communication Be Yea, Yea, Nay, Nay." Mr. Miller dealt with the question "What is the difficulty in saying what we mean?" He also pointed out to us what happens when we do not say what we mean, or mean what we say, and gave us a few rules to follow. The most outstanding of these were: "Do not plead necessity." Do not be sheep-minded.

The vesper service was a sequel to the previous one. The sermon was "Ways of finding Truth." One way, according to Mr. Miller was "studying the facts of Life," another, which quite appropriately brought in the use of "Silent Times" at the Seminary was "Methods of Prayer."

Bulgarian Embroidery Exhibited

Bulgarian needlework is being exhibited by Mrs. Constantine George, a resident of Mount Hermon School at the Home Science building Thursday, October 18 until Monday, October 22.

Mrs. George, herself a Bulgarian, will show many specimens of her handwork. Some of them are children's dresses, wall hangings, luncheon sets, pillow covers, bureau scarfs, original peasant costumes, and adaptations made by herself. The colors are chiefly brown, red, and orange, and the embroideries are done entirely on homespun linens, silks and cottons.

Those in charge of the arrangements are Miss Mira B. Wilson, Miss Helen E. Bush, Miss Clarice Carpenter and Miss Louise Arnett.

Miss Elizabeth Hill, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Hill of Waterbury, Conn., has been elected president of the sophomore class at Northfield Seminary. Miss Hill is the associate editor of the "Northfield Star" and secretary of the Sigma Delta dramatic club.

BUSINESS WOMEN MEET AT NORTHFIELD

The Franklin County Business and Professional Women's Club held a dinner meeting at the Hotel Northfield, Tuesday evening, October 16. Forty people attended. After dinner Leon Dunnell entertained the club with four musical numbers, Polochinelle by Rachmaninoff; Lento by Cyril Scott; To Spring by Grieg; and Jugglery by Godard.

The meeting then adjourned to the Chateau. The members were taken through some of the rooms and around the circular staircase before gathering around the open fire for the rest of their program. The Chateau was attractively decorated with corn stalks, black and orange crepe paper, jack-o-lanterns, and skeletons.

A school bell rang, and the club members discovered that they were again children in school. Miss Jeannette Daboll was the teacher. When she called the roll, it was discovered that several notable personages were in attendance. Among them were: Mae West, Zasu Pitts, Queen Mab, John Haigis, Mahatma Gandhi, and Clark Gable. These people were made to introduce themselves by some characteristic remark. One of the first things the students were asked to do was to take an intelligence test. Prizes were awarded to the scholars having the highest scores in each individual test. Those winning prizes were Miss Elizabeth Howard of Turners Falls, Mrs. Rose Maxwell, Mrs. Clara Bryant, and Miss Florence Pero all of Greenfield. At the recess time the students were taken to see a swimming match. At the close of the session each pupil was given a lolly-pop by the teacher, and she in turn was presented with a bouquet of asters.

A rising vote of thanks was given to the Northfield members of the club for arranging the evening's fun.

People's Forum

Dear Mr. Editor:—
Lend me thine ear, ere you 'go to press'

While my present status, I confess,
I want a wife, and want her badly.
For I've lost my job, which I need sadly.

And I find that no matter where

I go,

That without a wife, I stand no show.

Those ALPHABET jobs, so I am told,

Are not for me,—so I make bold.

To ask you where, in this world of strife

A fellow can find a loving wife?

A loving wife, with a job as well,

Who longs to hear that wedding bell.

Nineteen or ninety I don't care

And I don't give a rap about her hair.

She may be fat, she may be lean

A real Mae West, or just a string bean.

So please find me a wife, or else a good job,

(Either one would cause my young heart to throb)

Now be a good sport, and I'll never forget

That an ad in your paper, will be my 'best bet.'

(Yours for a wife, or a job)

He urged his hearers not to be deceived by this veneer of respectability.

AUTUMN

Shorter and shorter now the twilight clips
The days, as the sunset gates they crowd,
And Summer from her golden collar slips,
And strays through stubble fields, and moans aloud,
Save when by fits the warming air deceives,
And, stealing hopeful to some sheltered bower,
She lies on pillows of the yellow leaves.
And tried the old tunes over for an hour.

—Alice Cary.

INTERESTING DAYS

Since Oct. 25, 1801, was the birthday of the English painter Richard Parkes Bonington (at Arnold, near Nottingham) it might interest the children to set them hunting for reproductions of some of his historical paintings, or his coast and street scenes, in the art books of the library.

The American astronomer Lewis Boss, who won the gold medal of the Royal Astronomical Society of London in '05, was born at Providence, R. I., on Oct. 26, 1846. He was for many years director of the Dudley Observatory at Albany, N. Y., and of the Southern Observatory of the Carnegie Institution, and published many books on the stars.

The clever American sculptor, Miss Janet Scudder, who planned and executed many beautiful fountains and statues, and won various medals and honors with her work here and in the Paris Salon, was born at Terra Haute, Indiana, Oct. 27, 1873.

Nicholas Brady, poet and divine, who was born at Haddon in County Cork on Oct. 28, 1859, was Tate's collaborator in his "New Version of the Psalms of David."

Those who read "Tom Brown's School Days" may remember the assistant master of Rugby. The original of this character was George Edward Lynch Cotton, who was afterward Bishop of Calcutta. He was born Oct. 29, 1813, at Chester.

Adelaide Ann Procter, daughter of the popular English poet who wrote under the name of Barry Cornwall, was herself a poet of no mean talent. Her "Legends and Lyrics" were attracting much attention 75 years ago. She was born in London on Oct. 30, 1825.

Mrs. William George Peterkin, born Julia Mood on Oct. 31, 1880, in Laurens County, South Carolina, won the $1,000 Pulitzer Prize with her novel "Scarlet Sister Mary" in 1928. If you read and liked that, you should also read her "Black April."

CHERRY UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

Here is a Boston "piece de resistance" which is sure to please. Choose a frying pan about 9 inches across, of average depth, and melt 4 tablespoons of butter in it. Brush the sides of the pan with it, and add 1-2 cup light brown sugar. Melt this also and spread it evenly. Drain the juice from canned cherries and add 2 cupsful to the sugar. Pour over it the cake batter described below, and bake 50 minutes in a moderate oven. Turn out on a platter and decorate with sweetened whipped cream pressed through a pastry tube, making diagonal ribbons criss-cross over the warm top of cherries and sugar. Decorate with maraschino cherries.

BATTER—Cream 1-2 cup butter and add 1-2 cups sugar and cream again till as fluffy as whipped cream and sticks to sides of bowl. Sift 2-2 cups cake flour with 2-2 teaspoons baking powder and 1-2 teaspoon salt, and add to the butter and sugar mixture alternately with 1 cup of sweet skimmed milk, a little at a time. Finally fold in lightly whites of 4 eggs beaten stiff but not till dry.

SPANISH CHOPS

Order your pork chops (1 or 2 to each person to be served) cut 3-4 inch thick. Chop the end of a clove of garlic and rub over each chop. Sprinkle with salt (1 teaspoon to each pound of chops). Roll each chop in flour and brown in hot fat both sides. Cover with canned or crushed tomatoes, with chili powder in the proportion of 1 teaspoon to each 4 chops. Put on a lid and simmer 1 hour. The rich gravy gives the Spanish tang to the meat.

VEGETABLE MINCE MEAT

A delicious and inexpensive mince meat for pies, easily made, comes from Jessie Frappell of Corralitos, Calif. Chop fine and drain 4 quarts of green tomatoes, then cover with water and boil 30 minutes. Drain again and add 2 lbs. sugar, 1 lb. chopped raisins, 1 tablespoon salt, 1 cup butter and 1-2 cup vinegar. Cook to the desired thickness.

MAPLE LEAF SCALLOP

A good way to use up a cup of left-over meat, is to chop it and use in a scallop, as one Canadian housewife has leaned to do. Mince 1-2 onion and put in a saucepan with 1 teaspoon butter to heat, then add 1 tablespoon flour and stir until it is a smooth paste. Add water and seasoning to suit your taste, mix in the meat bits, and pour into a baking dish. Cover with mashed potato spread on evenly after seasoning and wetting the potatoes with a little milk. You can make it richer, and it will brown nicely, if an egg is added to the potato, but it is not really necessary. If you haven't the egg to spare, Bake 20 minutes till a nice, light brown, and serve hot.

BUTTER TAFFY

This is for the little folks! It comes from Texas. Boil together 3 cups brown sugar, 1-2 cup molasses, 1-4 cup water and 1-4 cup vinegar till it craps in cold water when dripped in. Add 4 tablespoons butter and cook 3 minutes longer. Flav. with vanilla, pour out thin on pans already buttered, and break in bits when brittle.

Winchester

Gov. Winant and Council came to Winchester on Wednesday. After going over the Dartmouth Trail from here to Bernardston and returning over the proposed relocation of the trail, a hearing was held in the town hall. The meeting opened at 11:30 A. M. Gov. Winant first called upon Mr. Everts a member of his Council to explain the law and the position of the state in regard to the relocation of highways, emphasizing the fact that in the interest of the people of the state, certain funds can be used on trunk-highways by and with the consent of the Governor and Council. It was brought out later in the hearing that on roads which are not trunk highways require a vote of the Legislature.

The Governor then called upon the proponents of the proposed change of location, to speak. Attorney W. H. Watson responded for Winchester after describing the present road conditions and calling attention to many bad features in the present highway and the advantages of a shorter route, a route which would start at or near Wanamaker Lake in Northfield, Mass., would shorten the route from Northfield to Winchester and the rest of the state about six miles.

Mr. Watson then called upon Judge Pierce who also spoke in favor of the proposed change. Roy M. Pickard demonstrated with a map the many advantages of the proposed change.

The Governor then called upon those who were opposed to the change and favored the present location of the trunk line highways.

Attorney Philip Faulkner of Keene led the opponents, and called upon Judge J. W. Field of Hinsdale to give his opinion of the change, which he did in an impassioned and forceful manner. Judge Field was followed by Senator Clarence Houghton of Walpole, Chester Bernham of Chesterfield, P. W. Taylor of Hinsdale and Morris Fire of Chesterfield.

The Governor then called upon those present who were not regular representatives to speak, Warren Buffum of Winchester spoke in favor of the new route and also Mrs. Ball.

Dr. Herbert C. Brokenshire of Winchester called from New Orleans Oct. 11th for his post at the Davao Hospital, Davao, Philippine Islands, where he has been serving under the American Board of Commissioners for Foreign Missions since 1926.

The Davao Hospital is an international and interracial center of healing, in that a dozen or more races are among its patients. A majority of the patients are Filipinos, many of whom are members of the pagan tribes in the wilds of the interior.

Dr. Brokenshire was born in Chicago, was graduated from Middlebury College in 1920, and earned his M. D. from Cornell University.

He has been identified with pioneer work among such pagan tribes as the Bogobos and Manobos and through the efficient work of himself and his associates, has put the Davao Hospital on a paying basis.

A very pretty wedding took place last Friday evening at the home of Mrs. Mary A. Gee, when her daughter, Retta May, became the bride of Chester F. Stone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Everett Stone. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Edgar R. Walker of Waltham, Mass., the double ring service being used.

Mrs. Addie Allen entertained Mr. and Mrs. Louis Kinsman of Springfield, Mass., for several days last week.

League Of Nations
Questions And Answers

On the ballot for the coming election on Nov. 6, 1934, will appear a question asking the voters of Northfield (as part of the First Representative District of Franklin County) to indicate whether or not they would like to have the United States join the League of Nations. This question will be on the ballot in 115 towns and cities of Massachusetts.

In order that our readers may receive dependable information on the League, we shall present questions and answers in this space in the issues between now and Election Day.

The Editor

IX

a. What Financial Problems Has The League Of Nations Handled?

The League saved both Austria and Hungary from financial collapse in 1923 and again in 1931. It has arranged facilities through the International Agricultural Mortgage Credit Company by which farmers in Europe can borrow money at reasonable interest for farm projects. A special fiscal committee is preparing a final convention (treaty) on double taxation which will help to eliminate the payment of taxes in two countries by individuals who live in one country and own securities or hold property or conduct a trade or profession in another.

The League is also studying the question of taxation of foreign motor cars making only a short stay in a country; it is working with the subject of counterfeit currency; with the help of a grant from the Rockefeller Foundation it is enquiring into the methods of taxation of foreign companies; and it is studying the world gold supply and distribution.

b. What Economic Question?

It sponsored, in May, 1927, a World Economic Conference, attended by delegations of experts from 50 nations, including the United States and Russia, which debated the causes of disturbances in the economic, industrial and agricultural fields and made a series of recommendations to the effect that world prosperity depends on foreign trade between nations. Since then all the League work for a tariff truce, removal of export and import restrictions, simplification of customs formalities, etc., has been to that end. It has been comparatively unsuccessful because the nations are not yet ready to lower their high tariff walls.

a. Does The League of Nations Actually Any Territory?

Yes, it is the ultimate authority for the government of the Saar Valley (650,000 inhabitants) until 1935 when a plebiscite, or popular vote is to be held. It also stands behind the local government of the Free City of Danzig (386,000 inhabitants).

b. What Are Mandates?

The territories taken from Germany and Turkey by the treaties of Versailles and Lausanne are entrusted to the care of certain powers acting as Mandatories on behalf of the League of Nations. The "mandate" is the charge given to a nation to administer, govern and develop a conquered territory. The League requires full reports each year from the mandatory powers to see that their mandated areas are being fairly administered; and any responsible person in a mandated territory may present a petition or complaint to the Mandates Commission of the League through the Mandatory Power concerned.

c. What Are Minorities?

Minorities are the people who differ in race, religion and language from those among whom they live. The changes of national boundaries made by the peace treaties created a tremendous minorities problem. "The Council of the League watches over the protection of the minorities in favor of the Council to enforce respect to accent its supervision. It is a States which have undertaken for the rights of these racial, linguistic and religious minorities, amounting to as many as forty millions of people." (Treaties of Peace). Conditions under this system are doubtless much better than before the public opinion of the world could be brought to focus on minority situations, but they are still far from perfect.

XI

a. What is the Relation of the League of Nations to Treaties Made Between Nations?

The League has established the rule of publicity for international agreements by registering and publishing about 2,400 treaties and conventions. These agreements are binding only when so registered. The United States now sends its treaties for publication in the League Treaty Series.

b. Does the Constitution of Any Country Incorporate the League of Nations Regulations Concerning War?

Yes, Spain has provided in its

THE BACK YARD GARDENER

There comes a time in every man's life—it comes about once a year, in fact—when he must gird his loins and hitch up his pants and set to work cleaning up the yard and garden. I suppose you might go into a long dissertation on the aesthetic value of cleaning up the place in the fall—putting all the blame on pride, and beauty, and that sort of thing. I'm not aesthetic enough for that to hold much appeal for me, but just the same I'm pretty religious about cleaning up the garden in the fall. And when your humble servant, who is undoubtedly one of the latest mortals ever created, spends four evenings and two Saturday afternoons on an unpleasant job, you can bet your Sunday shirt there's a good reason back of it.

Maybe it's taken a long time for those seasons to develop, or at any rate, it's taken a long time for them to get strong enough to convince me that a fall housecleaning is necessary. But I'm convinced now, all right. And if you want the reason in just one word, I can give it to you: "Diseases."

Most of the plant diseases that attack flowers and vegetables, and even shrubs and trees for that matter, live over the winter on the leaves and stems that are on the ground. Take the case of squash rot, or black rot, as it's called. It causes all kinds of trouble with stored squashes, even through it doesn't show up much in the field. One of its ways of living over from one year to the next is in the diseased squash vines that you and I leave lying in the garden.

Maybe you get a leaf spot on your lilac bushes. Let the leaves lie under the bushes until next spring, and as soon as the new leaves come out, there are millions of disease spores waiting to infect them, and make the trouble ten times worse than it was the season before.

I remember a few years ago, one or two of my peony plants got a touch of some kind of leaf blight. It didn't do much damage the year, but I didn't do anything about it that fall. Next spring, blight just about killed out the plants before the blossoms even started to open, and you never saw a more sickly bunch of peonies.

I'd heard men from the State College preaching "fall clean-up" for years, but never paid much attention to it. But after a few experiences like that one, I decided it wouldn't hurt any to try and clean up the place a little in the fall, and believe it or not—it worked. At any rate, the garden as a whole seemed to be a little more healthy than it had been for a long time; that is—those early season diseases were conspicuous by their absence. Some of them came along later in the season, as they always have done, and I suppose they always will do. But the plants had a head start anyhow, and were growing pretty well before any diseases caught up to them.

The thing that I try to do in this fall garden housecleaning is to get rid of all the plant material that has been growing during the past season. That means old plants, leaves, vines, stems, fruits, and anything else that might carry disease. If I know the tomatoes had some blight on them, all the tomato plants get burned. But if the leaves that fall from the maples weren't troubled by any disease, then they go into the compost pile or they're used for mulch. And so on down the list—if there's any danger of disease, the stuff goes into a good hot bonfire. But if it was healthy, then it helps make fertilizer for next year.

Plowing is just about the best treatment you can give your vegetable garden, because it will cover up the plant remains that might cause trouble next spring, and at the same time get rid of a lot of insects. For the flower garden, a hoe and a rake are mighty useful tools. And on the lawn you can do a lot of good with a rake and a bushel basket. But if you wake up next morning with a sore back, don't say I didn't warn you.

FORTNIGHTLY CORNER.

Mrs. Annie Russell Marble will be the speaker for the next meeting of the Fortnightly Club, Friday October 19th at 3 P. M. in Alexander Hall. Her subject will be the attractive challenge, "Books that Joggle the Mind."

The following new members have been added to the membership of the club: Mrs. Anna Freeman, Miss May Dalton, Mrs. Mary Moore, Mrs. Ralph Forsythe, Miss Alice Breilmaster, Mrs. Helen Hatch, Mrs. G. W. Norton, Mrs. M. C. Skilton, Mrs. Wm. White, Mrs. Irving Lawrence, Mrs. Gordon Moody, Mrs. G. A. Bonson, Mrs. Warren Whitman, Mrs. Fred Irish, Mrs. Ellis Jones, Miss Dorothy Ingham, Mrs. Joseph Morgan, Mrs. Julia A. Newton, Mrs. V. Savcheff and Mrs. Ralph Taylor.

new constitution that war cannot be made except in accordance with the Covenant of the League.

c. Does the United States Cooperate with the League?

Yes, in many ways. Our citizens are members of League committees, our delegations take part in League conferences, and our representatives at Geneva keep in close touch with all League activities which bear upon our welfare and interests. Our government cooperated in working out the Draft Convention which forms the basis of the present Disarmament Conference, and our representative sat with the Council during part of the deliberations on the Manchurian crisis. Not being a member of the League, the United States takes no voice in directing League affairs and makes no contribution to general League expenses.

Mother and Her Clubs

My mother's at the club today!
I don't know just which one;
But, anyhow, she's gone away
To have a lot of fun!
She's got a dozen clubs, I guess,
An' every day or so
She's lookin' up some new address
Where she's supposed to go!

When she's at home, she's busy, too—
She's always at the 'phone Advisin' someone what to do;
An' when she's left alone
She's writin' what the speaker said;
Or checkin' her accounts
T' find out why they're "in the red
In such absurd amounts."

Last year my mother said that she Was through for good an' all—
She simply wasn't goin' to be
In any clubs that fall!
But when she told 'em she was done,
An' all her friends got sore,
She kept her place in every one—
An' joined a couple more!

POST OFFICE NEWS

There was an opportunity to send a letter to Little America, in 1933, on the First Byrd Antarctic Expedition.

Now there is another boat going to Little America, and the sending of letters to this Expedition may be done at any time until November 1st, 1934. The letter should be enclosed in another envelope to the Postmaster at Washington, D. C., and marked on the outer envelope Byrd Antarctic Expedition II. The cost of this is 53c, and the letter will travel around 25,000 miles returning to the sender June 1935. If one would like to have the letter returned to someone else in the United States, this may be done. Cash or money orders may be used in sending the money. Stamps or checks are not accepted.

See the Postmasters at Northfield and East Northfield for further information as to the way the envelopes should be made ready for the trip.

Too many people set examples that should not be heeded.

EXTENSION SERVICE

Amherst, Mass. October 19—Rising food prices have set Massachusetts housewives to clamoring for information on how to feed their families a lower cost, reports Miss May E. Foley, extension nutritionist of the Massachusetts State College. Miss Foley assures the homemakers that the best meal from the point of view of health and nutrition is not necessarily an expensive one. The less expensive foods may be chosen, and will provide meals which are just as nourishing and just as appetizing as other meals which cost several times as much.

The meals for a family on a limited food budget, says Miss Foley, should be planned around three classes of foods, milk, vegetables, and grain, with sugars, fats, fruits, and inexpensive meats and meat substitutes added as funds will permit. It is unwise, she insists, to economize on milk, vegetables, fruits and eggs, because those are the protective foods, rich in vitamins and minerals, which protect the body against disease and improper functioning.

Whole grains provide a great deal of nourishment for the amount of money they cost; the same is true of dried beans and peas, which may be used in many ways. Potatoes continue to be the least expensive of the vegetables, although canned tomatoes, cabbages, carrots, turnips, onions, and squashes all are reasonably priced and should be included liberally in the family's meals.

White eggs frequently are cheaper than brown ones, and they are just as nourishing. The less expensive cuts of meat contain as much food value as those which are higher priced, and they may be prepared so that they are tender and toothsome. Cheese may be substituted for meat, and it provides a great deal of food for each dime of its cost.

Miss Foley has prepared a pamphlet on Spending the Food Money which is available free of charge at the Extension Service at the Massachusetts State College at Amherst.

EFFICIENCY AT THE EXPENSE OF LIBERTY

In a recent address, Edward Howard Griggs of the Brooklyn Institute of Arts and Sciences, commented on the many economic advances made in Italy under the dictatorship of Mussolini. He then said: "It will take Italy a hundred and fifty years to get back that freedom she had before Mussolini, if she gets it back! I think that is a tragic price to pay for economic efficiency."

That is the point of view that should govern our thoughts and our actions in these troublesome times. Plutocracy that the way to get the most efficient type of government was to appoint a tyrant, and give him unlimited power and a free hand. At various times in world history that has been done—and in exchange for efficiency, the people of the nations subjected to tyrannical rule have lost all freedom, all liberty, all that fought for. Victory over economic adversity was dearly won.

Today, all over the world, there is an undoubted trend toward dictatorship. Of all the great nations, we only with the exception of England, have been at all successful in maintaining democratic principles. And there is great danger that in our haste to better our lot economically, we will permit the weakening or destruction of those principles—that, in seeking efficiency in the routine of living, we will lose our freedom.

Nations cannot be governed now precisely as they were a century ago—but the basic principles of individual, industrial and governmental conduct that obtained then are as true as they ever were.
Necessary change can be effected, not at the expense of those principles, but with their aid.
